I don't care if you're short or tall, skinny or fat, office-worker, laborer, school-boy, or businessman. I must make a new virile he-man out of you and also help you build "inner strength" that will give you the virile look that women admire and men envy. What I did for Andre Lepine, Jack Delinger, Ray Schaffer and other "Mr. America" winners — and thousands of weaklings — I can do for you! Yes, I can turn you into a Real He-Man.

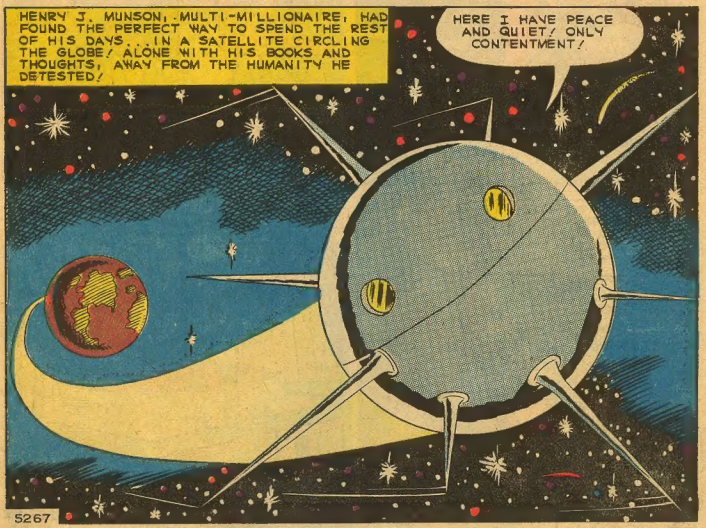
A CHANGE OF HEART



HENRY J. MUNSON, MULTI-MILLIONAIRE, HAD FOUND THE PERFECT WAY TO SPEND THE REST OF HIS DAYS... IN A SATELLITE CIRCLING THE GLOBE, ALONE WITH HIS BOOKS AND THOUGHTS, AWAY FROM THE HUMANITY HE DETESTED!
HERE I HAVE PEACE AND QUIET, ONLY CONTENTMENT!

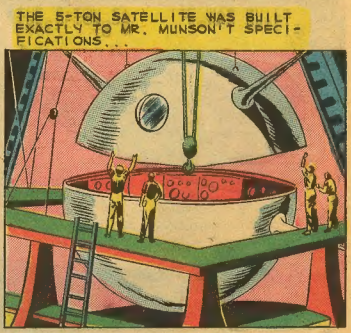
ONLY A FEW MONTHS BEFORE, HIS DOCTOR MADE THE GRAVE ANNOUNCEMENT...
YOU WANTED ME TO SPEAK FRANKLY, MR. MUNSON... WITH YOUR HEART AS IT IS, I GIVE YOU AT MOST ONLY 2 MORE YEARS...
I DON'T REALLY CARE... I'M TIRED OF THIS WORLD, ITS BICKERING, ITS GREED...

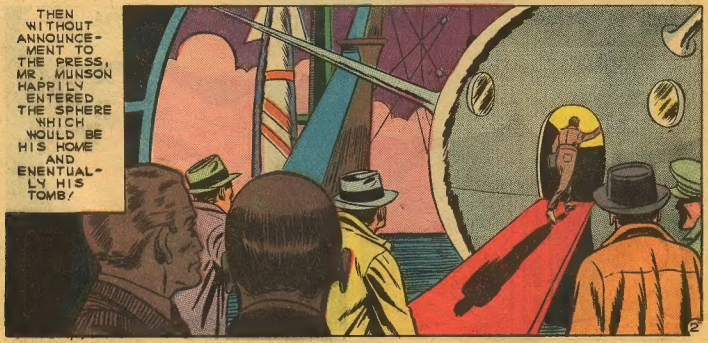
I'VE TRIED TO ATONE FOR MY HUMAN FRAILTIES, I'VE GIVEN AWAY MILLIONS TO RESEARCH FOR FINDING WAYS TO END WARS, BUT I GET NOWHERE WITH MY EFFORTS...

THEN MUNSON DECIDED ON THE SATELLITE AS A HAVEN, A REFUGE TILL THE END OF HIS DAYS!
IT'S TOO FANTASTIC...!
NOT FANTASTIC, WILLIAMS! I OWN THE MAJOR INTEREST IN THIS MISSILE PLANT! DO AS I SAY!

I WANT YOU TO BUILD A SPECIAL SATELLITE FOR ME...I SHALL HAVE IT EQUIPPED WITH MICRO-FILMED BOOKS...IT WILL BE AN IDEAL REFUGE FOR ME!



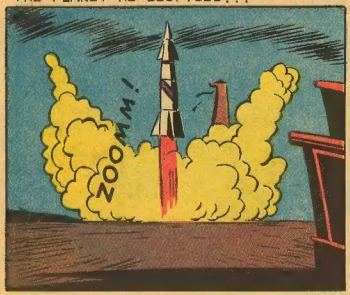
THE 5-TON SATELLITE WAS BUILT EXACTLY TO MR. MUNSON'T SPECIFICATIONS...



THEN WITHOUT ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE PRESS, MR. MUNSON HAPPILY ENTERED THE SPHERE WHICH WOULD BE HIS HOME AND EVENTUALLY HIS TOMB!

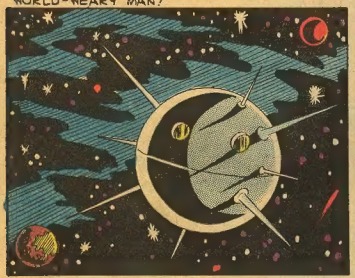
OUTER SPACE

UP INTO ORBIT WENT THE GREAT ROCKET CARRYING MR. MUNSON AWAY FROM THE PLANET HE DESPISED...

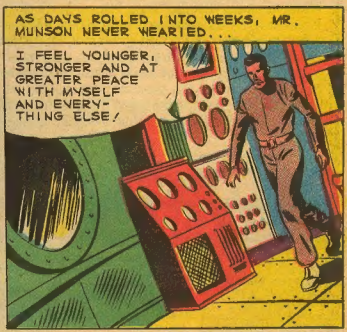


OTHER MEN HAD GONE UP IN THE SATELLITES AND HAD SAFELY RETURNED TO EARTH...

HERE HE COULD WATCH THE SPLENDOR OF SPACE WHILE HE READ HIS BOOKS... HERE WAS THE FITTING HAVEN FOR A WORLD-WEARY MAN!



AS DAYS ROLLED INTO WEEKS, MR. MUNSON NEVER WEARIED...



THEN A STRANGE SHIP FROM ANOTHER WORLD CAME TO SHATTER HIS IDYLLIC EXISTENCE!

Bubble Busters

I had taken a week end vacation and was walking through the market place of Asteroid-X2. There was always something enchanting and unusual to find in that walled and bubble protected city of Smorisband. For here you could find the old and the new. Merchants from Venus with sightseers from Earth. Soldiers from Pluto and students from the moon — all coming to Asteroid-X2. For this was a relay station of the Universe Patrol.

Idly my feet guided me through the crowded streets. We were all breathing oxygen in a part of the Universe where it did not exist. Deep down beneath the ground the oxygen machines were producing their daily quota of the living continuing gas. Very few of us carried the emergency mask and tank that had been required for the previous decade when we had been at war with Mars.

"Commander Ullway," a familiar voice greeted me from one of the numerous stalls in the bazaar. "I have some bargains for you. How would you like a rug from Timotan? Or some of the rare fruits from Bargomere? Well, well, a good sight for my old eyes. Come in and enjoy a cup of freshly brewed coffee with me."

I don't think I could ever forget Eornon who seemed almost ageless. We had saved him on the space freighter when a jet blaster went out of commission. A man with a very practical turn of mind. I still can remember the words he spoke to me.

"You have saved me. For this I am grateful. But all my goods are on that spaceship. Please save that cargo for me."

We did it but didn't realize the danger that encircled us. For a delay of five minutes would have spelt doom to all of us. That space freighter blew up and disintegrated; something we had not expected as we watched it through our rear window on my patrol ship. To be hurled by an explosion wasn't a choice way of travelling to one's doom.

I walked into his shop and sat down on a comfortable chair. He clapped his hand twice and a little robot-server came with a small table and set it up. Then he poured out two cups of coffee. According to the custom I sipped mine first.

"Everything is quiet and peaceful on Mars." smiled Eornon.

"Our occupying force is still there," I replied. "Willing to admit the Martians are still sullen, but we intend to stay there for a long time. I will visit the planet on my next trip."

Then I stopped speaking. There was something in the voice of Eornon when he had asked that question that sounded a bit tantalizing. As though he knew the answer before he asked the question.

"Something on your mind?" I shot back.

"You are a very clever man, Commander Ullway," he complimented me. "Or perhaps you can read my mind. You have about thirty Martians on our Asteroid. Theoretically you have checked them for security measures before you permitted them to leave Mars. They are all merchants with a lot of goods to sell. I bought some bargains from one called Renucker. Definitely it was sold to me at a loss.

"Why? Having that trend of mine immediately communicated with my friends here who also had dealings with the Martians. They too bought merchandise definitely at a loss. A business man exists only when he makes a profit. Now you tell me what was so important that would cause those merchants to make the expensive trip from Mars here, go through a lot of trouble to get clearance certificates, and then sell their goods at a loss? Go ahead, you tell me?"

Our Intelligence Group had been getting strange rumors but had been unable to check them to any definite source. They all centered around the same concept: A core of die-hards on Mars had secretly trained a sabotage group of men. Somewhere they would strike and it would be a sign for revolt on Mars. But where would they strike? And what would they do?

"If any group of people could smash the bubble protecting this city, most of us would die," I said slowly so that the importance of the situation should not be lost. "We have a missile guard over the entire area and feel rather secure. If they caught our planes grounded we would be dealt a terrific blow. It would take time to establish another relay station. We have had our men shadow every one of those merchants who arrived here from Mars. We are not taking any chances."

"They are leaving on different spaceships but at the same time," continued my friend. "Does that make any sense? If something should happen not one of them would be here to be injured or killed."

I was worried and my eyes turned to the side where the robot-server was standing. I clapped my hands twice and it came over to me. I pushed the third control button and then opened a slide. Next I removed a small recording tape. For everything we had said had been "taken in" by that robot-server.

"Just a security measure," I said as amazement spread all over the face of Eornon. "Come let us both walk. Close up your shop. I want to visit some of your friends. Maybe they have something to tell me."

Soon the two of us were winding our way through a narrow street. A group of students were watching a "Magician" do some age old tricks.

"See this empty box," he intoned. "Nothing on the outside. Nothing in the inside. Now watch me turn it over and then back."

Which he did and there in the inside was a small growing Bolo Tree. It grew quickly to a height of ten feet. The crowd applauded and they threw him some coins. I opened my purse and threw a gold coin at him which he picked up.

"The Earth Man is very liberal. No doubt he was pleased with my performance," grinned the "Magician."

"You well earned it," I said and turned around with my friend following me and trying to figure out what I was going to do. We spotted a small helicopter cab.

"To the Relay Station outside the Dombrovian Marshes. At full speed."

"Yes, Commander," replied the driver.

Ten minutes later we were in my office. I left Eornon there with Lieutenant Bommel. I had a lot of orders to give.

"Arrest every Martian on sight and stop every freighter from leaving here. Get every Universe Patrol ship up into space. Let them hover at the third band. Put your radar screens and energy detectors in reverse. I want to know what is happening inside this Asteroid. Then triple the guards at the oxygen machines. I also want security men at the distribution centers."

Before nightfall the arrested Martians were all in my office. I had chairs brought in and also the "Magician" with his box. He repeated his trick that I had seen.

"Exactly what are the charges against us?" demanded Renucker, the Martian. "We haven't done anything wrong. Our credentials and backgrounds were checked very carefully before we left Mars."

"You are all members of a sabotage group," I replied. "And it was a very clever plan. You brought with you among the items for sale some 126 rugs. You sold 63 of these at a loss. Where are the other 63?"

There was no reply and I knew definitely that they were trying to figure out how much I learned, and from whom. So I continued speaking.

"You were like this "Magician." Nothing outside and nothing inside. Your crates of merchandise were double checked when you came here. You wove stolen energy units into those rugs. And like the tree, they will suddenly grow with terrific explosions. All you have to do is to plant those rugs somewhere.

It was a clever idea you had — create the explosion from underground. That would set the oxygen aflame, but we also depend upon the oxygen to keep up the internal pressure on our protective bubble. You were going to destroy that pressure. Then the outside pressure would be greater and burst our bubble.

Don't try to chuckle inside and feel secure that even though we know your plan, we won't be able to do anything about it. The energy detectors will find the rugs, and your punishment is going to be unique. I am going to return all of you safely to Mars. I won't even send you to a compound. You shall walk around Mars freely. Of course they shall all know you failed. And they shall wonder why you failed. Suspicion will be planted and something tells me a lot of things may happen to you."

"I have often heard them say how clever you were, Commander," began Renucker the Martian. "I'll talk. Tell you everything but just one favor. Don't send us back to Mars. You can exile us to any of the other planets or stars, but not to Mars."

I agreed and he produced a chart showing where all the destructive rugs had been planted. The energy detectors found them all but the chart helped a lot. I kept my word. We sent the group as sort of prisoners to the colony on Mauritania.

I offered my friend any reward he so desired, but he just smiled.

"Let it never be said that Eornon could forget to help one who had helped him. Anyway, you should know that my father was killed in the Martian War. So that also honors his memory."
